

Appendix 1

FLYING CLOTHING

1. Choice of clothing for crew members will depend on several factors. In the absence of general or local orders concerning the wearing of flying clothing, common sense will have to be used in deciding the items to be worn. The conditions under which the flight is to be made, and the possible emergencies which may be encountered, are also factors to be taken into account.

2. The life jacket is worn over the flying suit or immersion suit, as appropriate.

Note .

As the aircraft is equipped with flotation gear, no personal survival packs are carried by the crew members or stowed in the aircraft.
